

Marianne Van Lancker (Belgian National) graduated from Ghent University with a Master's degree in Political and Social Sciences. After an internship at the European Commission (DG Enlargement) and work at the cabinet of the Flemish Ministers of Culture, Youth and Sports, she joined the international relations office of the Ministry of Education. Since 2012 she works at the department of Family Medicine and Primary Health Care of Ghent University as a project manager dealing with the a variety of international research projects and networks, one of which being European Forum for Primary Care that she supports in its day to day business.